Environmental Announces Expanded Geographic Capabilities

Barbara Deas, Environmental Division Senior Vice President, and Lou Levinson, Casualty President, are pleased to announce we have expanded our underwriting capabilities in our New York and San Francisco offices.

ACE Westchester

Jack Doyle, Casualty underwriter in New York, and John Fook, Casualty underwriter in San Francisco, have expanded their expertise to include environmental account underwriting. They will now be available to underwrite and service both environmental risks as well as casualty risks.

Lou Levinson states, “Jack and John have both proven to be knowledgeable and service-oriented casualty underwriters. This background will assist them in evaluating and pricing the combined general liability/pollution liability products offered by the Environmental Division”.

The expansion of underwriters into these two offices is part of the overall growth plan of the Environmental Division. This growth supplements the Eastern U.S. office in Roswell, Georgia and the Western US office in Denver, Colorado. Additional geographic locations will be staffed in 2008.

“Each broker has a team of underwriters to meet their environmental needs, with specialists in small and middle market business, renewals, business auto and larger, more complex environmental risks” says Barbara Deas. “The addition of Jack and John supplements this team approach by placing environmental specialists in major locations to allow quick response on contracting, consulting and manufacturing risks”.

Please contact Marsh Duncan, Devin Claypool, or Rob Owens for more information. Jack Doyle, John Fook and the entire team of environmental underwriters stand ready to assist in the addition or placement of environmental coverages in this ever-changing insurance environment.
